"They are HIS kids, too."

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a young mother who feels she can't do anything right. My three children deserve a better mother than they have. I am always yelling at them, threatening, spanking and punishing. They are under 10 years of age and constantly at war with each other, the neighbor children and with me.

My husband says it's my job to control the kids and I know he's right, but I just can't do it. I see other youngsters who behave beautifully. This means their mother has done a good job. No one will ever say that about me and mine.

More than anything I want to be a good mother but I don't measure up. I know you can't straighten me out in one letter, but please lead me to the help I need.—BLUE MONDAY.

Dear Monday: First get a complete physical check up. You may be run-down and in need of medical attention. This can make people short-tempered and impatient.

Next, contact the Family Service Association or a local mental health clinic for reading material on how to raise children.

There are days when every mother, no matter how competent, would cheerfully change children with any neighbor, but the situation you describe is not an "off day." Your kids sound out of control.

And P.S.: Your husband could be helping instead of criticizing. They are HIS kids, too. Give the doll some reading material and tell him it's got to be a joint effort.

Dear Ann Landers: You must be a man. No woman could have given such rotten advice to the daughter whose 72-year-old dad wanted to remarry—in the old folks home yet.

The old geezer should have been declared off his trolley. I almost fainted when you gave him the green light. After all, the man has lived a full life. Fifty years of marriage, a nice family. What more could a person want?

Just because the old elk has met a woman at the home who must be as nutty as he and they want to get married, is no sign the family should O.K. such nonsense. This just proves what I've always said: Sick, well or dying — just show me a man who is too old or too tired for sex and I'll eat this newspaper — the whole Sunday edition.

Thank you. — GLAD I'M SINGLE

Dear Mary Sunshine: I'm glad you're single, too. This is
